Verbal Description:

Figurine fragment with a well defined ear and a punctated sphere capstone with a semi-leaf shaped flange above the ear. The flange is separated from the headless by a vertical groove. Head is very convex - juts out from front surface. Red slip over all surfaces. Smooth interior surface. No firing damage. Facial area looks fork-marked. Possibly more of the headless?

The following is a report from the British Army in the field.
The British Army is now
in a very strong position and is well equipped for the future.
